Common Seal of the Australian Heritage Commission

The Register of the National Estate is an inventory of places 'that have aesthetic, historic, scientific or social significance or other special value for future generations as well as for the present community'. It is a list of the nation's heritage resources available to all decision makers to assist them to make better-informed decisions. There are no direct legal constraints placed on owners of private property, or on State or local government property by the entry of that property in the Register. Entry in the Register does not grant public access to private property.

In essence the Register is an alerting and educational inventory compiled on the single criterion of national estate significance, which is being developed to be as comprehensive as practicable, and which has implications for protection where actions by the Commonwealth are concerned.

The Commission will give due consideration to all objections made concerning its intention to enter places in the Register and would be assisted by being informed of the specific grounds on which an objection is based. It wishes to point out, however, that the final decision must be made in accordance with the requirements of the Act under which it is operating and therefore the prime consideration in the assessment of an objection must be whether the place in question does or does not have national estate significance.

Telephone inquiries about the Commission, the Register and the places listed in the schedule, are welcome and reverse charge calls will be accepted. The number to call for information on:

- . the Commission and the Register is (06) 2712160
- . Historic places is (06) 2712138
- . Aboriginal places is (06) 2712123
- . Natural places is (06) 2712140
