Australian Heritage Commission

The Register of the National Estate is an inventory of 'those places, being components of the natural environment of Australia, or the cultural environment of Australia, that have aesthetic, scientific or social significance or other special value for future generations, as well as for the present community'.

The Act provides that Commonwealth Ministers and Commonwealth agencies must not take any action which would adversely affect any place on the Register unless there is no feasible or prudent alternative, that damage is minimised where there is no such alternative, and the Commission is informed and given time to comment. Registration has no legal effect on the actions of State Governments, Local Governments, or private individuals, corporations or institutions in the States.

The Commission has the following objectives for the Register:

- to make a comprehensive list of all the places in Australia which have heritage value;
- to educate Australians, by means of this list, about the natural and cultural history of their country;
- to give all decision makers, inside and outside government, objective information to help them make better decisions;
- to allow Commonwealth decisions and actions related to the National Estate to be taken as thoughtfully and carefully as possible.

A comprehensive Register will take many years to compile and will be a continuing process. All registrations will have the same status irrespective of the time of their entry. There are no gradings between different categories of places in the Register.

ANNEX

Background

The Government of Malawi aims to improve living standards among the rural population inter alia by eradicating illiteracy. This task is to be approached through functional literacy programmes designed to improve the technical skills and general knowledge of small-scale farmers. The task is considerable in a country of 6.1m population where the literacy rate is 25 per cent.

Based on the recommendations of a UNESCO consultant in literacy and adult education, the UNDP/ UNESCO project provides for pilot programmes to be initiated in three areas, as integrated components of large-scale Rural Development Priority Projects. The literacy components will be planned to synchronize operationally with the National Rural Development Programme (NRDP) and share in their services and facilities.

The National Council for Literacy and Adult Education, an interministerial body on which the Malawi Broadcasting Corporation, the University of Malawi and non-governmental and voluntary agencies are represented, has been reconstituted. A National Centre for Literacy and Adult Education, the executive arm of the Council, is to be established in the Ministry of Community Development, and will be the project base.

Three UNESCO experts are to be appointed. They will be concerned with planning and programming, studies, surveys, curriculum design and development, preparation and production of teaching/learning materials and training. During the first eighteen months preparations are to be made for delivering the literacy programme during the following year to 300 classes, comprising thirty learners in each class with one teacher in charge, in each of three pilot areas. Instruction will cover ten months of accelerated literacy teaching. Altogether 27 000 men/women would go through the programme each year. Apart from the resident experts, the project provides for consultants who will contribute special skills in practical subjects (should these not be locally available) evaluation, etc.

National character of the project

Operational projects, benefiting from UNESCO assistance, are national projects and it is up to the beneficiary country to assume responsibility for directing the project as well as ensuring its proper implementation.

It is understood that within the outline of activities defined in the project document, the national responsibility will include as well the use of the equipment including furniture and vehicles.

As a result, the international specialists will carry out the missions entrusted to them under the guidance of the Chief Community Officer, Ministry of Community Development, or other person designated by him.

Being UNESCO Staff Members, the specialists will, however, be under the authority of the Director-General of the Organization and will, therefore, be directly responsible to him for the manner in which they carry out their functions and, in certain cases, they will be under the supervision of the Chief Technical Adviser.
