PR-45 - Genetic manipulation of rumen bacteria for detoxification of the plant poison fluoroacetate

Name of Organisation Proposing Release: University of New England

Address of Organisation: Institute of Biotechnology, University of New England,
Armidale NSW 2351

Name of Organism: Rumen bacterium (Butyrivibrio fibrisolvens), strain OB156, bearing recombinant plasmid pBHerm.

Purpose of the Release: To determine the field effectiveness of the altered organism in protecting sheep and cattle against poisoning by fluoroacetate.

Brief Description of the Nature and Effect of the Genetic Modification: The bacterium Butyrivibrio fibrisolvens exists normally in the rumen (forestomach) of sheep and cattle. Strain OB156 has been altered by inserting a novel gene that allows it to detoxify the naturally occurring plant poison fluoroacetate. The detoxification gene was obtained from the soil bacterium Moraxella species. It is intended that colonisation of the rumen by the modified bacterium should provide some degree of protection for domestic ruminants against this otherwise lethal poison.

Location and Size of Trial: Several grazing properties in Queensland and the Northern Territory. Approximately 20 animals at each site will be inoculated with the modified organism. It is expected that other animals within the herd will acquire the bacterium through normal animal to animal transmission.

Further Information: Can be obtained from the institution's contact officer,
Dr Keith Gregg ☎ 067 73 2748, fax 067 72 9539.

NOTICE PURSUANT TO SECTION 16

Labelling of Organic Foods (A214)

The National Food Authority received an application (A214) on 24 December 1993 from the Australian Quarantine and Inspection Service (AQIS) to amend the Food Standards Code to include provisions requiring all fresh and processed foods, which are labelled to indicate or imply that they have been derived from production systems commonly known as "organic", "biodynamic" or similar terms, to also be labelled with:

- . the name; and/or
- . the unique registration number of the organic producer, processor or importer; and possibly
- . the identification of the accredited certifying organisation.

For this purpose, "organic producer, processor or importer" would mean an operator registered under the certification scheme established by AQIS.

The Authority has completed a full assessment of the application, has prepared a draft variation to Standard A1 - Labelling and Advertising, and will now conduct an inquiry to consider the draft variation.

To assist in this process, the Authority invites written submissions on matters relevant to the purpose of the inquiry. Submissions should be received by the Authority no later than 23 November 1994.
