Responses to this request should be directed to the Standards Liaison Officer at the Authority at the above address, and be received by 28 February 1998.

POLICY DOCUMENT - Role and Use of Codes of Practice, Guidelines and Ancillary Documents The Authority has developed this document for use by the Authority to support compliance with food legislation in Australia and New Zealand. The purpose of the paper is to set out the policy framework of measures intended to support the implementation of a less prescriptive food regulatory environment that are developed by or with the participation of the Authority; or endorsed by the Authority.

Copies of the Policy Document are available from the Authority upon request.

MATTERS AT INQUIRY. The Authority will conduct an inquiry into the variations to standards prepared at full assessment of the following application:

Use of Oxidised Polyethylene on Citrus Fruit (A271) An application from Hoechst Australia Ltd to allow use of oxidised polyethylene as a coating agent on citrus fruit.

You are invited to present written submissions to the Authority on matters relevant to this inquiry, including the potential regulatory impact on consumers, industry and government, by 28 January 1998. The information paper on this matter provides further information, including advice on the Authority's policy on submissions.

MATTERS BEFORE COUNCIL. The Authority has completed an inquiry into the variations to a standard prepared at full assessment of the following application and has recommend to the Australia New Zealand Food Standards Council that the variations be adopted into the Food Standards Code:

Alcohol Content of Vanilla Essence (A334) An application to delete the requirement that vanilla essence must contain not less than 50% ethyl alcohol and to delete the requirement that vanilla essence must be produced by extraction of vanilla beans with aqueous ethyl alcohol.

NOTICE OF RECEIPT OF PROPOSALS FOR PLANNED RELEASE OF A GENETICALLY MODIFIED ORGANISM

REQUEST FOR SUBMISSIONS

The Genetic Manipulation Advisory Committee (GMAC) has received applications for the planned release of a genetically modified organism. The Committee invites written submissions on matters relevant to the environmental and safety issues of these proposals. Submissions should be received by GMAC within 30 days of the date of this Gazette.

All correspondence, including submissions and inquiries, should be addressed to:

PR-88: Field evaluation of barley yellow dwarf virus-resistant Schooner barley

Organisation proposing release: CSIRO Division of Plant Industry
GPO Box 1600
Canberra ACT 2601

Organism to be released: Barley (Hordeum vulgare), cultivar Schooner

Purpose of the release: The aim of the proposal is to evaluate the resistance of a modified barley to barley yellow dwarf virus (BYDV) infection in the field. BYDV is the most important virus of cereals worldwide and there are no fully effective natural resistance genes.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The two most common strains of BYDV in Australia are BYDV-RPV and BYDV-PAV. Part of a gene from BYDV-RPV and part of a gene from BYDV-PAV have been inserted into barley. The presence of these genes induce the plant's defences to specifically destroy the virus. Also included in the trial are some transgenic plants containing reporter or selectable marker genes that are easily monitored. The selectable marker genes encode resistance to the antibiotics neomycin and hygromycin, and resistance to the herbicide glufosinate. The reporter marker genes encode the enzyme β -glucoronidase and a green fluorescent protein from jellyfish.

Location and size of trial: Two plots of about 10 square metres containing a total of 780 plants, at the Ginninderra Experiment Station, Hall, ACT.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Dr Peter Waterhouse, telephone (02) 6246 5365.

◇ ◇ ◇

PR-89: Agronomic and varietal assessment in Northern Australia of transgenic cotton expressing the CryIA(c) and combinations of CryIA(c) and CryIIA delta-endotoxins from Bacillus thuringiensis

Organisation proposing release: CSIRO Division of Plant Industry
GPO Box 1600
Canberra ACT 2601

Organism to be released: Cotton (Gossypium hirsutum)

Purpose of the release: The aim of the release is to begin evaluation of different transgenic varieties and agronomic management principles for a potential cotton industry in northern Australia based on transgenic INGARD (insect-resistant) cotton. The material used until now has been the most advanced breeding lines being evaluated for use in the Eastern states, but it may be necessary to breed lines specifically for northern Australia.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The genes introduced into the cotton plants are the CryIA(c) and CryIIA genes from the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis. The plants contain one or both genes. These genes produce proteins that are toxic to certain caterpillars (and mosquitoes in the case of the CryIIA protein), including the major caterpillar pests that attack cotton. Plants expressing the insecticidal proteins should require fewer applications of chemical pesticides during their cropping.

In addition to the insecticidal genes, the plants contain a selectable marker gene conferring resistance to the antibiotics kanamycin and neomycin.

Location and size of trial: Approximately 2.4 million plants, in an area of approximately 24 hectares spread over three sites. There will be 13 hectares at the WA Department of Agriculture Research Station at Kununurra, Western Australia, 10 hectares at the Katherine Research Station in the Northern Territory, and one hectare at the Douglas-Daly Research Station also in the Northern Territory.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Dr Greg Constable, telephone (067) 99 1522, and Dr Gary Fitt, telephone (067) 99 1514.

PR-90: Herbicide tolerant hybrid Brassica juncea

Organisation proposing release: AgrEvo Pty Ltd
1731 Malvern Road
Glen Iris VIC 3146

Organism to be released: Indian mustard (Brassica juncea)

Purpose of the release: The Indian mustard plant (Brassica juncea) is closely related to commercially grown canola (Brassica napus), and modern plant breeding would suggest that a canola quality Brassica juncea would be interchangeable with Brassica napus for processing. Features of non-canola quality Brassica juncea lines, such as greater tolerance to heat and drought and early maturity, are sought after in canola quality breeding.

The aim of the release is to trial in the field a new system for making hybrids in suitably modified Indian mustard plants.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The system for making hybrids involves ensuring that plants cross-pollinate rather than self-pollinate. To ensure that the plants cross-pollinate, a bacterial gene conferring male-sterility has been introduced into the plants. A second line of plants contains a bacterial gene that restores fertility, so that the hybrid formed when the two lines cross is fertile.

The transgenic plants also contain selectable marker genes encoding resistance to the herbicide glufosinate ammonium and the antibiotic kanamycin. The inclusion of the gene for resistance to the herbicide will also enable glufosinate ammonium to be used to assist weed control in the crop.

Location and size of trial: 11 separate sites of approximately one hectare each, on farmer properties in Wagga Wagga Shire, NSW.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Peter Whitehouse, telephone (03) 9248 6666, facsimile (03) 9248 6650.

◇ ◇ ◇

PR-91: Planned release of GMO oilseed poppy (Papaver somniferum)

Organisation proposing release: Department of Primary Industry and Fisheries, Tasmania
1 Franklin Wharf
Hobart TAS 7000

Organism to be released: Oilseed poppy (Papaver somniferum)

Purpose of the release: The aim of the proposal is to determine the potential for cross-pollination between transgenic oilseed poppy and plants of the same or a related species. Based on positive results from this release, it is expected that future field trials will include release of an oilseed poppy modified for increased alkaloid production. Currently, oilseed poppies are cultivated for the production of alkaloids useful as pharmaceuticals, for example: morphine, codeine and thebaine.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The transgenic plants contain a reporter gene encoding the enzyme β -glucuronidase, and a selectable marker gene encoding resistance to the antibiotic hygromycin. These two marker genes allow identification of the transgenic plants from non-transgenic plants.

Location and size of trial: 500 plants, in an area of approximately 5 square metres, in Sassafras, Tasmania.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Dr M Doyle, telephone (03) 6426 1078.

PR-92: Field evaluation of genetically engineered barley

Organisation proposing release: CSIRO Division of Plant Industry
GPO Box 1600
Canberra ACT 2601

Organism to be released: Barley (Hordeum vulgare), cultivar Golden Promise

Purpose of the release: The aim of the release is to assess the field performance of two lines of barley genetically modified for malting quality characteristics.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The first line of transgenic barley contains an additional copy of an α -amylase gene in an attempt to increase the production of the starch degrading enzyme, α -amylase, and hence the ability of the barley grain to degrade its own starch. The gene originates from barley and it functions in the plant in the same way as the native α -amylase genes.

In the second line of transgenic barley, a gene encoding a hybrid bacterial heat-stable enzyme, β -glucanase, has been inserted. Barley β -glucanase degrades the β -glucan (a type of starch) in the grain during germination, but the enzyme is heat-labile and is killed in the high temperature phases of the malting and brewing processes. Consequently, during malting and brewing, β -glucan breakdown can be incomplete. It is hoped that the insertion of a heat-stable enzyme will overcome this problem.

The transgenic plants also contain a selectable marker gene encoding resistance to the herbicide glufosinate ammonium.

Location and size of trial: 1200 plants in an area of 33 square metres, at Ginninderra Experiment Station, Hall, ACT.

PR-93: Development of fungal disease resistant canola cultivars

Organisation proposing release: AgrEvo Pty Ltd
1731 Malvern Road
Glen Iris VIC 3146

Organism to be released: Canola (Brassica napus)

Purpose of the release: The aim of the trial is to evaluate strategies for obtaining fungal disease tolerance in canola. Four new lines of transgenic canola will be tested in areas where fungal disease infestation is high.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The canola lines to be released have been genetically modified for tolerance to fungal diseases such as Blackleg, using genes from tobacco (Nicotiana tabacum) and macadamia. Selectable marker genes encoding resistance to the herbicide glufosinate ammonium or the antibiotic ampicillin were also transferred to the transgenic plants.

Location and size of trial: A total of 20 hectares in Wagga Wagga (NSW), Lake Bolac (Victoria), Devonport (Tasmania) and one other area in southern Australia (to be advised). Details of the exact sites have not yet been finalised.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Peter Whitehouse, telephone (03) 9248 6666, facsimile (03) 9248 6650.

PR-94: Winter seed increase of INGARD cotton expressing glyphosate tolerance

Organisation proposing release: CSIRO Division of Plant Industry
GPO Box 1600
Canberra ACT 2601

Organism to be released: Cotton (Gossypium hirsutum)

Purpose of the release: The aim of the proposal is to increase the amount of seed of a number of elite breeding lines containing the genes for tolerance to the herbicide glyphosate (Roundup®) and the insecticidal gene INGARD. The trials will allow seed increase of the selected material for subsequent testing as part of an ongoing program to produce commercially useful cotton cultivars with tolerance to glyphosate and insects.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The transgenic plants contain two genes from the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis, CryIA(c) and CryIIA, which encode proteins that are toxic to the major insect pests of cotton. The plants also contain the 5-enolpyruvyl shikimate-3-phosphate synthase (EPSPS) gene from a soil bacterium conferring tolerance to the herbicide glyphosate (Roundup®). In addition, the plants contain a selectable marker gene encoding resistance to the antibiotics kanamycin and neomycin.

Location and size of trial: Approximately 400,000 plants, in an area of just under 4 hectares, Kununurra, WA.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Dr Danny Llewellyn, telephone (02) 6246 5470, and Dr Greg Constable, telephone (067) 99 1522.

REQUEST FOR SUBMISSIONS

Notice is given that the following applications to extend existing proposals to release genetically modified organisms have been received.

All correspondence should be addressed to:

Fax: 02 6213 6462

PR-60X(2): A planned release of Brassica napus, variety laurate canola

Organisation proposing release: Monsanto Australia Limited
PO Box 6051
St Kilda Road Central VIC 8008

Organism to be released: Canola (Brassica napus)

Purpose of the extension to the release: The aim of this extension is threefold: (i) to continue evaluation of the agronomic performance of Laurical® high laurate canola; (ii) to assess compositional quality of the canola grown under commercial conditions; and (iii) to screen the canola for resistance to blackleg disease.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: Laurical® high laurate canola plants have been modified by the insertion of a gene derived from another plant, Umbellularia californica (Californian Bay), which codes for the enzyme acyl carrier protein thioesterase. The effect of this enzyme is to alter the fatty acid composition of the canola seed, increasing the amount of lauric acid present in the transgenic canola oil.

In addition, the plants express a 'marker' gene from the bacterium Escherichia coli that allows identification of the transgenic plants. This gene encodes neomycin phosphotransferase which confers resistance to the antibiotics kanamycin and neomycin.

Location and size of trial: A total of approximately 12 hectares in Struan, SA; Horsham and Lake Bolac, Victoria; and Wagga Wagga, Colleambally and Canowindra, NSW. An application may be made for the use of additional sites closer to the planting date.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Nicolaas Tydens, telephone (03) 9522 7109, facsimile (03) 9525 2253.

PR-62X(3):Development of glufosinate ammonium tolerant canola cultivars

Organisation proposing release: AgrEvo Pty Ltd
1731 Malvern Road
Glen Iris VIC 3146

Organism to be released: Canola (Brassica napus)

Purpose of the extension to the release: To complete the breeding trials initiated under the original proposal, which involved screening the herbicide resistant canola lines in the field for a range of traits and generating field data for the purposes of registration with the National Registration Authority of glufosinate ammonium for selective use in canola.

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The canola lines to be released have been genetically modified for tolerance to the herbicide glufosinate ammonium. A gene from a bacterium, encoding the enzyme phosphinothricin acetyl transferase (PAT), was inserted into the plants. The PAT enzyme inactivates the herbicide, thereby conferring tolerance to the herbicide.

Location and size of trial: Approximately 3 hectares over several sites in Toowoomba and Gatton, Queensland; and Gyra, NSW.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Peter Whitehouse, telephone (03) 9248 6666, facsimile (03) 9248 6650.

PR-77X: Planned release of transgenic canola expressing tolerance to the herbicide glyphosate

Organisation proposing release: Monsanto Australia Limited
PO Box 6051
St Kilda Road Central VIC 8008

Organism to be released: Canola (Brassica napus)

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The transgenic canola plants have been modified to contain two new genes which produce proteins known as CP4 EPSPS (5-enolpyruvylshikimate-3-phosphate synthase) and GOX. These proteins are found naturally in common soil microorganisms, and together they confer tolerance to glyphosate, the active ingredient of the herbicide Roundup®.

Purpose of the extension to the release: The aim of this extension is to develop commercial lines of the herbicide resistant canola. This will allow the application of glyphosate for the control of weeds which emerge following crop planting. Material imported from Canada will be screened for adaptation to the Australian environment and will provide the basis for further breeding, selection and evaluation.

Other tests will include assessment for tolerance to blackleg disease, and continuation of studies to measure residues of the herbicide and its metabolites in the plant and in unprocessed commodities derived from canola.

Location and size of trial: A total of approximately 15 hectares in Millicent, SA; Wagga Wagga and Guyra, NSW; Gatton, Queensland; and Horsham and Lake Bolac, Victoria.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Nicolaas Tydens, telephone (03) 9522 7122, facsimile (03) 9525 2253.

GENETIC MANIPULATION ADVISORY COMMITTEE

NOTICE OF RECEIPT OF PROPOSALS FOR GENERAL RELEASE OF A GENETICALLY MODIFIED ORGANISM

REQUEST FOR SUBMISSIONS

The Genetic Manipulation Advisory Committee (GMAC) has received applications for the general release of a genetically modified organism. The Committee invites written submissions on matters relevant to the environmental and safety issues of these proposal. Submissions should be received by GMAC within 30 days of the date of this Gazette.

All correspondence, including submissions and inquiries, should be addressed to:

The Secretary
Genetic Manipulation Advisory Committee
GPO Box 2183
CANBERRA ACT 2601

Tel: 02 6213 6490
Fax: 02 6213 6462

GR-4: Evaluation of Roundup Ready® cotton grown under commercial use conditions

Organisation proposing release: Monsanto Australia Limited
PO Box 6051
St Kilda Road Central VIC 8008

Organism to be released: Cotton (Gossypium hirsutum)

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: The cotton plants have been modified to express the 5-enolpyruvylshikimate-3-phosphate synthase (EPSPS) gene from the soil bacterium, Agrobacterium. This gene produces a protein which confers tolerance to glyphosate (the active constituent in the herbicide Roundup®).

In addition, the plants express a selectable marker gene from the bacterium Escherichia coli, neomycin phosphotransferase, which confers resistance to the antibiotics kanamycin and neomycin. This gene was inserted to allow identification and selection of the transgenic plant cells in the laboratory.

Some cultivars will also express the CryIA(c) gene, derived from the bacterium Bacillus thuringiensis. This produces a highly specific insecticidal protein (Bt) that is toxic to the major caterpillar pests of cotton. The Bt protein is non-toxic to humans, other animals and most other insects.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Ms Marion Sheers, telephone (03) 9522 7122.

GR-5: General release of glufosinate ammonium tolerant hybrid canola cultivars

Organisation proposing release: AgrEvo Pty Ltd
1731 Malvern Road
Glen Iris VIC 3134

Organism to be released: Canola (Brassica napus)

Brief description of the nature and effect of the genetic modification: A new system has been developed for making hybrid varieties of canola. (Hybrid varieties of canola provide higher yields.) The system involves ensuring that plants cross-pollinate (with other canola plants) rather than self-pollinate. To ensure that the plants cross-pollinate, a bacterial gene conferring male-sterility has been introduced into the plants. A second line of plants contains a bacterial gene that restores fertility, so that the hybrid formed when the two lines cross is fertile.

Selectable marker genes, encoding resistance to the herbicide glufosinate ammonium and the antibiotic kanamycin, were also transferred to the transgenic plants.

Further information: The institution's contact officer for this proposal is Mr Peter Whitehouse, telephone (03) 9248 6666, facsimile (03) 9248 6650.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED DATA MATCHING PROJECT

From December 1997, Centrelink intends to match its client Departments, the Department of Social Security (DSS) and the Department of Employment, Education, Training and Youth Affairs (DEETYA) customer records with data from the Department of Immigration and Multicultural Affairs (DIMA), permanent settler arrivals data.

The program will enable Centrelink to implement the residency waiting periods prescribed in the Social Security Legislation Amendment (Newly Arrived Resident's Waiting Periods and Other Measures) Act 1997. It will identify Centrelink customers who are incorrectly receiving a payment through misrepresenting their residential status in Australia.

Australian Bureau of Statistics figures indicate that there were 92,510 Permanent Settler Arrivals to Australia for the year ending 31 December 1996. It is expected that these numbers will be consistent for the year ending 31 December 1997.

A Program Protocol describing this matching program can be obtained from:
